

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates. The cable ownership cap is a crucial element of our democratic media, and it should not be weakened.

As an internet professional I have experienced the effects of the consolidation of media companies directly. I value diversity in the Internet and this consolidation is not in the interest of the American people it only serves the interests of advertisers and the controlling companies. No one company should own the pipelines.